

All Inclusive Ireland Tours

TRAVEL TIPS

Robin Raven, Leaf Group

All-inclusive tours of Ireland vary about as much as the diverse terrain on the Emerald Isle. They may allow you to explore such astounding sights as Dublin Castle, the Cliffs of Moher on the western Ireland coast and the red deer in Glenveagh National Park. From customizable luxury tours to budget adventures, all-inclusive tours of Ireland typically include everything but the airfare to and from the island.

Ireland has a temperate oceanic climate that's primarily influenced by the Atlantic Ocean, so you can enjoy a lot of outdoor activities without worrying about extreme temperatures. However, remember to pack a windbreaker or jacket because rain is common, especially in the the western part of the country.

Hiking or Biking Tour With REI Adventures

REI Adventures has two all-inclusive Ireland trips for active travelers who love to be immersed in nature and explore the great outdoors. Ranging from seven to 10 days, both are led by expert guides. REI's 10-day hiking tour of Ireland covers diverse terrain, ancient ruins, historical castles and lots of scenic beauty. On the cycling tour, experience the wonders of the coast from the Irish Sea to the Atlantic Ocean. Along the way on either tour, the group stays in small, comfortable inns. Neither tour includes airfare, but both the cycling and hiking tours include meals, lodging and entrance fees to attractions.

Beginner's Level Yoga and Biking Tour

Wilderness Ireland specializes in weeklong, all-inclusive tours throughout the country. Its six-night biking and yoga escape tour of northwest Ireland runs for six nights and includes everything but airfare. This tour starts in Strandhill and leads guests through beautiful back roads they may never have discovered on their own, helping them feel immersed in the local culture, traditions and scenery. Accommodations in cozy guests houses and hotels are provided. So is vehicle transportation, admission fees, ride snacks and drinks, and meals. Daily yoga sessions are provided each day in the morning or evening, led by a professional yoga teacher.

All Ireland Rocker Tour

Busabout's tour takes guests to Inis Mor, the islands that boast more than 50 religious and historical monuments off Ireland's west coast. It also covers the north and south of Ireland. This seven-day tour includes visits to Dublin, Derry, Galway, Ennis, Killamey and Ballintoy. It covers entrance fees, six breakfasts, accommodations, the ferry and transfer to Inis Mor, and transportation around Ireland.

Customized Tour of Ireland's Bay and Cliff Coasts

Epic Ireland offers all-inclusive tours of the Bay Coast and Cliff Coast regions of Ireland. Groups of five or more can create their own customized tour. The tours can include attractions such as Ashford Castle, Dunguaire Castle, Cliffs of Moher, the Deserted Village and Kylemore Abbey. Guests can be as active as they want with optional activities like caving, cliff jumping, hiking, mountaineering, surfing, cycling or canyoning. The tours are all-inclusive, covering shared accommodations, activities, admission fees, equipment and local transportation. Breakfast and lunch are included, but dinner is not.

Ancient Ireland Tour

Ireland's rich history is worthy of many tours, and the ancient Ireland tour with Vagabond Tours lets you immerse yourself deeply in the country's past. Travelers are escorted through the Wicklow Mountains south of Dublin and on to the eastern coast. Along the way, they'll see historical artifacts that shed light on how Ireland came to be the way it is today. This tour is fine for those who aren't seeking physically active adventures. It's done at a relaxed pace and includes only short strolls around museums and other attractions.

Women's Tour of Southern Ireland

Women who want to explore southern Ireland with a small group will enjoy the tour offered by Serendipity Traveler. It focuses on the stunning natural beauty of the country. It will also take guests to prehistoric Celtic sites, gardens, majestic castles, historical Irish pubs and other locales to provide authentic experiences of Ireland culture. Enjoy your own private room each night as part of the tour. All meals and admission fees are included.
